

antiochinternship

intern categories

Kilns College – Education, Administration and Marketing

Administration: Administrative work is always towards the bottom of most people's wish list, but the knowledge and experience you can gain through developing strong administrative skills can give you an advantage in any field you wish to pursue. At Kilns College we offer training in a wide range of administration to help you gain the most from your experience.

Development: In it's forth year, Kilns College is still a young school and we need bright minds and innovative ideas to help grow and develop our degree programs, course lists and fund raising plans. If you love brainstorming and getting the ball rolling on projects we would love to talk to you!

Marketing and Communications: So much of developing a successful college depends on having a fresh and innovative marketing and communications department. If you have a mind for marketing and want to see your ideas help build a college, let us know!

Recruiting: A college cannot exist without students, if you are interested in helping develop recruiting plans and interacting with high school and college age students we would love to see you be a part of the Recruiting Program at Kilns College.